“Asmaa, you made me cry, smile, and feel loved all at the same time. I couldn’t imagine how tough life must be for these girls, but with your big heart, they sure will come out strong and be influential changemakers in this world.”

“Thank you for reminding us that we should not take our schooling for granted, but instead treasure reading and discussion as ways we learn about ourselves and others.”

“I feel empowered as a woman after watching the film. I feel that you have raised your voice for the benefit of us all, and I am forever grateful.”

“While I agree with you that we can all make positive change, it can take a lot of courage. You have inspired me to find my courage. I’m sure many more people will find their courage to make positive change too...”

It was heart touching and wrenching at the same time, and brought tears of joy and sadness...

...what a beautiful example of the power of one...

“I’m a teacher and I found so much inspiration from this film. My hope is to share your story with those that I teach so that they may be inspired to look at the world differently.”

“I felt inspired to be part of the people who can make a change to help the world be more at peace.”

“...it gave me hope that just one action from a determined individual in the community could change anything.”

“After watching the film, I am not as I was before, walking with hesitant steps, but rather I will walk with steps full of confidence and the will to change and create generations.”

“Seeing how you find light within a difficult experience is something so powerful! I appreciate how much you do to build confidence in young women. I wish that I had a woman as inspiring and confident as you in my life.”

“...in a world that looks like it is lacking of love and compassion lately, your braveness and courage inspired me...”

“The film was very powerful and inspiring. It was really powerful to focus on a story of hope and resilience in the context of a terrible conflict rather than just focusing on the death and destruction.”

“It was eye-opening and encouraged me further to extend my knowledge about refugees and their lives. Seeing how you find light within a difficult experience is something so powerful. I appreciate how much you do to build confidence in young women.”
